Anna Bozzi joins the Executive Board of scienceindustries

Zurich, November 16, 2026. Effective January 1, 2027, Anna Bozzi will take over as head of the "Environment, Safety, Technology" and "Biotechnology, Nutrition, Agriculture" divisions at scienceindustries and will join the Executive Board. She has been with scienceindustries since 2011 and is thoroughly familiar with the member companies and industry issues. Anna Bozzi thus combines scientific expertise with many years of experience in the industrial and regulatory sectors.

In her new role, Anna Bozzi will represent the interests of the chemical, pharmaceutical, and life sciences industries on key technical and regulatory issues and help shape the association's strategic direction as a member of the Executive Board. "Anna Bozzi knows our industries, their challenges, and our association from her many years of personal experience. With her scientific and technical expertise and her wealth of regulatory experience, she will significantly strengthen our executive board," says Dr. Stephan Mumenthaler, Director of scienceindustries.

Anna Bozzi, 53, holds a master's degree in chemistry from the Università degli Studi di Bari and subsequently specialized in wastewater treatment. Her professional career combines scientific expertise with experience in industry and the federal administration. Following her research work at the École polytechnique fédérale de Lausanne (EPFL), she worked for both an international corporation and the federal administration. She has been with scienceindustries since 2011, most recently as Head of Environment and Sustainability.

Anna Bozzi succeeds Dr. Michael Matthes, who is retiring after more than 14 years at scienceindustries. During his long tenure, he played a pivotal role in shaping and advancing the association's technical work and advocacy efforts. He was particularly committed to ensuring safe and competitive framework conditions in the areas of chemical regulation and industrial production, as well as to forward-looking energy, climate, and sustainability policies. In doing so, he also specifically built and expanded numerous valuable networks with stakeholders. scienceindustries thanks him for his great dedication and wishes him all the best for this new chapter in his life.
